

THE WEATHER
Fair and continued cool tonight; Tuesday increasing cloudiness becoming unsettled; moderate northeast winds.
TEMPERATURE AT EACH HOUR
8	9	10	11	12	1	2
61	59	56	53	51	50	48

VOL. VIII.—NO. 244

Entered as Second-Class Matter at the Postoffice at Philadelphia, Pa., Under the Act of March 3, 1879.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, JUNE 26, 1922

Published Daily Except Sunday. Subscription Price $6 a Year by Mail. Copyright, 1922, by Public Ledger Company.

NIGHT EXTRA

PRICE TWO CENTS

THINK LAWRENCE WAS SLAIN AS HE PROTECTED GIRL

Woman's Screams Heard From Woods About Time Youth Was Killed

BELSHAW IS FOLLOWING NEW THEORY IN MYSTERY

"Woman in Case" Asked to Notify Police if Latest Surmise Is Correct

VICTIM'S FUNERAL HELD

Police Still Searching for Possible Clues to Slayer of Botanist

Funeral of Cooper Lawrence, the young nature student who was found murdered Wednesday along Pennypack Creek just off Shady lane, was held at the home of his mother, Mrs. Lawrence, at 10 and 11 o'clock.

This is the belief of Lieutenant Belshaw, of the murder squad, who advanced the new theory this morning after spending the greater part of yesterday investigating the case.

He has abandoned the other possible solutions of the crime and will concentrate on his latest theory, the fifth that has been followed out since the finding of the youth's body.

Lieutenant Belshaw returned to City Hall late last night from the vicinity of the murder. Early in the morning he was informed by persons living near the spot that they had heard a woman scream Monday night between 10 and 11 o'clock.

Belshaw Gives Theory
The belief that Lawrence was killed at the hands of an enraged man when he attempted to go to a woman's rescue is strengthened, according to Belshaw, by the finding of automobile tracks in the soft dirt along Shady lane and signs of a struggle on the sloping ground of the edge of the narrow road. That there was a severe struggle in the bushes bordering the creek is evidenced by broken branches and trampled earth.

The explanation advanced by Belshaw is that the young botanist was sleeping beneath an overhanging rock about fifty yards from the roadway when he heard screams coming from the direction of Shady lane. He jumped up, grabbed his gun, and ran toward the spot where the screams originated.

Then he threw himself onto the girl's companion and attempted to subdue him, while the latter, frightened at the sudden leaping of the youth or enraged because of the interruption, drew a revolver and fired at Lawrence's back when the youth turned to pick up his own gun which had dropped. After shooting Lawrence the man is believed to have dragged his body into the woods and then fled.

Want Girl to Come Forward
According to the detective a quick solution of the new theory would be found if the girl, said to have screamed, would come forward and tell what she knows of the murder.

It is up to the woman to make a statement on this morning. She knows who the murderer is. It is her duty to the boy who tried to help her, to let us know where to find him. If we can find her there will be no more mystery.

Further information that may lend weight to Belshaw's theory came to the police yesterday when it was learned that Sunday night a woman was seen who lives in the Falls of Schuylkill when taken for an automobile ride by men who later disappeared.

One of the girls ran to a farmhouse near the scene of the murder and told the occupants that a man in a machine had tried to attack her. When she regained her composure she also dropped out of sight.

In the meantime detectives are combing the entire section in the vicinity of Lawrence's body was found.

Further reports were received from the student were conducted this morning at his home, 1623 Chestnut street, when Lawrence said yesterday that if some police with the latest news, it was likely her husband would employ private detectives to run down the slayer.

FINDS LOST CHILDREN ASLEEP ON DOORSTEP

Fireman Discovers Camden Youngsters Who Wandered From Home

Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning William Reynolds, a member of the Gloucester Fire Department, found four children asleep on a doorstep at Fifth and Jersey avenues. He notified the police, after being told by the children's mother that they were Matthew, six years old, 1127 Mount Pleasant avenue; his sister Isabel, three; William Wade, six; and William Lyons, six; who had wandered away from home after tea and when they were weary to continue further.

MRS. ALTEMUS ON JURY

Is Drawn in Case of Man Accused of Drug Peddling

Mrs. Jessie Dolson Altemus, an unmarried woman, was one of the jury panel drawn in the case of a man accused of drug peddling, who was a member of the new board of jurors which began service in the Federal District Court, Saturday.

The case is that of Arthur Brown, alias "Red," charged with peddling.

Brown lives in Chester. He denied the charge.

Two other women, Mrs. Altemus and Mrs. Mary E. Brown, 502 1/2 North 10th street, were also on the jury.

She Rescued Boy

Camden Stenographer, who pulled Philadelphia boy from water after he had gone down third time

MISS OLIVE BOWEN
Camden stenographer, who pulled Philadelphia boy from water after he had gone down third time

CAMDEN GIRL SAVES CHILD FROM DEATH

Olive Bowen, 18, Stenographer, Pulls Phila. Boy From Water at Pea Beach, N. J.

HAD GONE DOWN 3D TIME

Olive Bowen, a pretty eighteen-year-old stenographer of Camden, is such a modest heroine that after rescuing Billy Lowe, seven-year-old Philadelphia boy, as he sank for the third time at crowded Pea Beach yesterday, she forbore to tell her family anything about it.

When inquiries were made for Olive at her home at 400 Friends avenue, Camden, early today, she was sleeping peacefully in bed, and Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Bowen received their first intimation of their daughter's notable feat.

Olive was resting on the shore after a long swim at the resort near Delmar, N. J., when she noticed a commotion in the water near a flat boat anchored fifty yards from shore. At the same time a chorus of shrieks from the small boys playing on the boat floated across the water. A tiny pair of hands appeared momentarily in the white water, and disappeared.

Almost together Olive and three men outdistanced the others, and as she came to the spot where the child had sunk, her blonde head breasted on the water, and she held the boy's unconscious form in her arms.

He had gone down for the third time, and the 2000 spectators who rushed to the shore held their breath as the water grew quiet over the place where he was last seen. At last she broke the surface again, and a great cheer went up as if she held the boat as it coughed and spluttered in her arms.

Several boats had put out toward the spot, and she trod water until they arrived. Then she held the boy's unconscious form in her arms, and went home.

Parents of Boy See Rescue
Mr. and Mrs. Lowe, who live at 1637 Berks street, this city, had watched the scene in an agony of suspense. They rushed to the boat as it coughed and spluttered, and showered their thanks upon their rescuer.

"Oh, it's nothing," said Olive faintly. "Please don't say anything more. In spite of the storm, the day was shivering in her one-piece bathing suit. The holiday crowd pressed about, eager to see and be close to her. She made her way through them, and went home.

"I didn't tell mother and father about it, because I was afraid that they might not say anything more. I was in a state of the worst of the day, and was taking a well-earned hour or two off from her work as a stenographer at the Equitable Insurance Company, 319 Market street, Camden.

"I don't like all this fuss, and I do hope that no more will be said about it. I did what any one that could swim would have had to do, under the circumstances. No, I didn't think of the danger. There was no time for that. The poor child was drowning."

She patted and kissed the boy's eyes. "I am so glad I wasn't too late. He was such a sweet child. After all, it is nice to feel that you have saved a human life."

The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph today confirms previous reports from Brigadier General Bruce, head of the present expedition, that persistence in the effort to scale the peak would only result in useless, untried deaths.

General Bruce was most reluctant to abandon further attempts, but the condition in which the two last climbing parties were left, and the certainty of worse weather conditions daily forced him to a decision, says the writer.

Major H. T. Morshead was the worst sufferer from frostbite. G. L. Mallory and another member of the party were also badly bitten, and several others less severely.

The correspondent quotes "one of the greatest authorities on the Himalayas" as saying that Bruce's "glorious failure" has proved conclusively that the summit of Mount Everest is not to be reached by the present route. The authoritative view in India is that if an expedition started earlier in the season it might be barely possible to reach the peak, but that the last lap could only be covered by almost superhuman effort, under unprecedentedly favorable weather conditions.

Another was that he was being held in the investigation of his personal enemies, against whom he was called in to testify in a case against the United States Government.

New York, June 26.—(By A. P.)—An appeal to the State Department, asking that formal demand be made at once on Mexico for the release of A. Bruce Bielaski, held for ransom by the Mexican Government, was made today by Frank L. Sample, vice president of Richmond Levering & Co., of which Mr. Bielaski is also a vice president and director.

Mrs. Sample said the appeal was sent to Secretary Hughes by telegraph, but he declined to give out its contents.

The best selling newspaper in Philadelphia today is the Evening Bulletin.

PINCHO TO ASK PUBLIC FOR FUND

Nominee Said to Favor General Contributions to Campaign "War Chest"

REPEATS HIS DEFIANCE TO OLD GUARD'S TACTICS

Asserts He Will Carry Out Primary Pledges Despite Views of "Bosses"

Boots and your service Bring Pincho Here

Gifford Pincho came here today for an important conference on campaign finances and incidentally to exchange a pair of leaky rubber boots for a pair absolutely waterproof.

The nominee for Governor brought the boots on a long haul to this city. When he strode into a trout stream in Pike County they slipped water.

A campaign fund raised by popular subscription in limited amounts is said to be favored by Gifford Pincho, Republican nominee for Governor, who conferred here today on financial details of the fall campaign.

At the insistence of the nominee, the State Committee has abandoned the idea of assessing officeholders for campaign contributions. It also has expressed opposition to big contributions from corporations and individuals.

At the conference in the Bellevue-Stratford were Senator Pepper, W. Harry Baker, State chairman; Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, State vice-chairman; James F. Woodward, Secretary of Internal Affairs, and Justice Robert S. Gavthron, nominee for the State Superior Court.

The campaign fund plans are to be carried out by a finance committee on lines suggested by Mr. Pincho and the other candidates. The members named to the committee by chairman Baker will be subject to the approval of all the candidates.

Interesting in connection with today's conference, and the fact that it is to be held in the evening, is the fact that in actual practice, it is a letter written by Mr. Pincho to his friends on the State Committee who supported General Miner for Governor, and a determination not to be dominated by the Old Guard.

The letter follows:
"This is just a line to tell you how greatly I appreciate your support on the name of Sandy McNiblick, under the most serious injury. He may have contusion of the brain, and a fracture of the skull. He has been unconscious since the accident."

Mrs. Sanderson has a fractured right shoulder. She is a Belgian by birth and was married to a Belgian. Sanderson was a lieutenant in the American expeditionary force.

Pinned Under Wreckage
Miss Gram, who was riding beside Mr. Maxwell, has a broken right arm and a fractured rib. She may be hurt internally. The officers were killed into the road, but Miss Gram was jammed under the wreckage on the floor of the car.

When Governor Small was told the sad news he burst into tears, then said: "I have been thinking of you for a year and a half, and there is a law at the happiest days in her life."

Mrs. Small was born in Livingston County, New York, December 17, 1861. She and the Governor were married in 1892. They have lived in Kankakee ever since.

Mrs. Small was an unusually happy, friendly, and generous woman, and seemed particularly glad to be home from Washington, where she had been with Governor Small during the closing days of his term as Governor. She arrived home some time ago, and had been having her meals at the Dixie highway, six miles east of Kankakee by a large delegation of friends and neighbors in 1920.

While Governor and Mrs. Small were standing at the door of their home, Mrs. Small, who was wearing a long dress, collapsed shortly before midnight.

With Mrs. Small at the time of her death, she was accompanied by her children, Leslie and Boyd, and Mrs. A. E. English.

Girls Drop Fighting Fire; Save Family of Eight

North Second Street Maids Carried Out Unconscious and Badly Burned

Trapped by flames in the third floor of their home, Mary and Stella Levin, Mrs. Levin's two daughters, fought bravely to save their family of eight. They were watched by neighbors and six other members of their family until their night clothes were burned and they fell unconscious from injuries. They were rescued by firemen before the flames reached them.

The two sleep the upper stories of their home at 556 North Second street, cutting off the ways to safety for the family of eight. They cried aloud the entire neighborhood, and a large crowd watched as the firemen carried them down.

The girls fought valiantly with pails of water trying to stem the progress of the flames until virtually all clothing had been burned from their bodies and their hair was falling out. After the girls had been carried out, their bodies were found huddled in a corner. John Levin, father of the girls, and four other relatives, John Lewis, Stephen, Nellie, five, and Francis, three, probably owe their lives to the work of Mary and Stella.

Swimmer Pulled In by Patrolman at Pleasant Hill Park

Patrolman Joseph Egan, on duty at Pleasant Hill Park, has pulled a swimmer from the first hole of the season yesterday.

The man had ventured out too far and became exhausted. Egan saw him and pulled him in. He was given a first aid and sent home. He declined to give his name.

Do You Want a Used Automobile? We have a fine one for sale. Call at 26th and Locust.

Accused of Shooting

Wife of an electrical contractor, formerly in the umbrella business in Philadelphia, who is accused of shooting him in the cheek at a party

MRS. OSCAR A. HIRSCH
Wife of an electrical contractor, formerly in the umbrella business in Philadelphia, who is accused of shooting him in the cheek at a party

MAXWELL IS GAME IN MOTOR SMASHUP

Badly Injured Himself. He Insists That Companions Be Cared For First

"SANDY McNIBLICK" HURT

Bob Maxwell's first thought when he was smashed up early yesterday morning in a collision between his automobile and a motortruck was for his injured companions.

And his chief thought today, as he lies in the Montgomery Hospital at Norrisdown, with seven broken ribs and a dislocated hip, is for the comfort of those who were injured with him.

Mr. Maxwell, whose expert knowledge of sports is recognized throughout the country, and who is sports editor of the EVENING PUBLIC LEADER, was one of ten hurt in the accident, which occurred on the Exeter road, between Jeffersonville and Hetzwood, near Norrisdown.

The six-ton truck which collided with Mr. Maxwell's car was carrying a load of three campers. It was badly damaged and the driver, Mr. Maxwell's machine was ripped away.

In Mr. Maxwell's machine were Miss Florence Grant, 1623 North Thirty-third street; Mrs. Percy Sanderson, 4737 North Eighth street; and Frank Mackin, 247 North Sixtieth street.

Mr. Sanderson, a sports writer for the EVENING PUBLIC LEADER, under the pen name of Sandy McNiblick, was the most seriously injured. He may have contusion of the brain, and a fracture of the skull. He has been unconscious since the accident.

Mrs. Sanderson has a fractured right shoulder. She is a Belgian by birth and was married to a Belgian. Sanderson was a lieutenant in the American expeditionary force.

Pinned Under Wreckage
Miss Gram, who was riding beside Mr. Maxwell, has a broken right arm and a fractured rib. She may be hurt internally. The officers were killed into the road, but Miss Gram was jammed under the wreckage on the floor of the car.

When Governor Small was told the sad news he burst into tears, then said: "I have been thinking of you for a year and a half, and there is a law at the happiest days in her life."

Mrs. Small was born in Livingston County, New York, December 17, 1861. She and the Governor were married in 1892. They have lived in Kankakee ever since.

Mrs. Small was an unusually happy, friendly, and generous woman, and seemed particularly glad to be home from Washington, where she had been with Governor Small during the closing days of his term as Governor. She arrived home some time ago, and had been having her meals at the Dixie highway, six miles east of Kankakee by a large delegation of friends and neighbors in 1920.

While Governor and Mrs. Small were standing at the door of their home, Mrs. Small, who was wearing a long dress, collapsed shortly before midnight.

With Mrs. Small at the time of her death, she was accompanied by her children, Leslie and Boyd, and Mrs. A. E. English.

WICKEDEST MAN" JAILED

Camden Prisoner Gets Unenviable Title on Conviction

Lewis Hamilton, 35-year-old street near Seventh, Camden, described by the police as "the wickedest man in Camden," was sent to the New Jersey State Penitentiary for from one to three years today by Judge Stacy.

Mrs. Lisker was not aware that Miss Ritter was a runaway. She noticed that the girl was greatly depressed and, by direct questioning, learned the truth.

"I had no idea she was a runaway," said Mrs. Lisker, "and I couldn't go back now."

But her employer made a quiet investigation and learned differently. She found the girl has used a good average. Mrs. Lisker then got in touch with her relatives.

and was sent her of her good standing in school, and her demeanor quickly changed.

Man Says Wife of Host Helped Rob Him of $3.80

The promise of a cocktail lured James E. Roundtree, of 577 South Front street, to the home of James Moore, at 280 South Water street, yesterday. According to Roundtree's story, he was served beer water. When he awoke about the cocktail, he says, he found himself starting into the middle of a revolver.

SHOT AT HOME OF FILM STAR

O. A. Hirsch, One-Time Theatrical Producer, Wounded at Rene Davies' Party

RICH CONTRACTOR'S WIFE IS RELEASED UNDER BAIL

Hysterical, She Cries, "I Didn't Do It; He Forced Me to Do It"

New York, June 26.—An early morning attempt to a party that started Saturday night at the luncheon of Miss Rene Davies, film actress, at 17th Street, was interrupted by a shooting which wounded O. A. Hirsch, one-time theatrical producer, and one-time electrical contractor, who was shot through the chest.

Hirsch shot himself or was "accidentally shot" by his wife while she was endeavoring to wrench the automatic pistol from his hand.

According to the Nassau County authorities, Mrs. Hirsch shot her husband during a quarrel in a back room of the Davies luncheon.

George N. Levy, freemason attorney, retained to defend Mrs. Hirsch, blames "hoose" for the trouble. Levy said he was uncertain whether Hirsch shot himself or was "accidentally shot" by his wife while she was endeavoring to wrench the automatic pistol from his hand.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

London Bows in Mourning as Wilson Is Laid to Rest

Hundreds of Thousands Pay Tribute to Slain Field Marshal—Foch Marches in Colorful Cortege to Cathedral

London, June 26.—Londoners by the hundreds of thousands paid tribute to the late Field Marshal Sir Henry Hughes Wilson, victim of assassins. For hours they stood patiently in line in a drizzling rain to watch the solemn funeral procession making its way to the sound of muffled drums from the field marshal's late home in Eaton Place to St. Paul's Cathedral. The three-mile route was choked with spectators and traffic was at a standstill.

St. Paul's Square had never held so many people since the funeral of King Edward in 1910, while outside St. Edward's home as the procession started on a great multitude had assembled, for officers and soldiers, being conspicuous among them. The cortege, which had lined up in the cortege formed and passed on toward the Cathedral.

Throughout the city all flags were half-masted and many offices and shops were closed to permit employees to witness the imposing procession. Through the entire day was one of the most national mourning, even from far of New Zealand coming word that minute guns would be fired during the funeral services.

In Northern Ireland, the home of the slain soldier, there were special manifestations of grief, and memorial services were held in most of the churches.

Colorful Pageant of Nations
Next walked a group of officers and the military secretary representing the Secretary of War, who was the only ministerial member appearing in the cortege. Brilliantly uniformed members of the army council, general officers, admirals, the members of the air council, representatives of the colonies and the dominions and foreign military attaches followed in a colorful pageant of nations.

Detachments of the royal Ulster constabulary and representatives of the Ulster Government, whose service was Sir Henry's last notable undertaking, were bearing hundreds of wreaths, evidencing the grief of the field marshal's countless friends and admirers throughout the world.

The cortege started from Eaton Place at 11 o'clock and proceeded to St. Paul's Cathedral. The funeral services were held in the cathedral at 12 o'clock.

Flower-Laden Gun Carriage
From the bullet marked doorway in Eaton Place where he died the body of the late field marshal was trundled on a flower-laden gun carriage to its final resting place in St. Paul's Cathedral, where he was buried in the tomb of Wellington, Nelson and others who made British history on the battlefield and the apartment.

Thousands of cheering troops, horse and foot, lined the route.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother, Bernard J. Douras, father of the Davies sisters.

Magistrate Douras admitted that he had been one of the thirty or forty guests at the affair, but Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, and her brother,